

FILED
Clerk
District Court

MAY 11 2001

For The Northern Mariana Islands
By 501
(Deputy Clerk)

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN MARIANA ISLANDS

JUYEL AHMED, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

ROBERT GOLDBERG, in his personal
capacity, UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
COMMONWEALTH OF THE
NORTHERN MARIANA ISLANDS, and DOES 1-25

Defendants.

RUI LIANG, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

ROBERT GOLDBERG, in his personal
capacity, UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
COMMONWEALTH OF THE NORTHERN MARIANA ISLANDS, and DOES 1-25,

Defendants.

Civil Action No. 00-0005

ORDER GRANTING IN PART
AND DENYING IN PART
DEFENDANT CNMI'S MOTION
TO DISMISS SECOND AMENDED COMPLAINT AND DENYING PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR
PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Civil Case No. 99-0046

1        Ahmed v. Goldberg,<sup>1</sup> Civil Action No. 00-0005, came before the Court on September 7,
2        2000, for hearing on (1) Defendant Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands's ("CNMI")
3        Motion to Dismiss Second Amended Complaint ("SAC"), (2) CNMI's Motion for Supersedeas
4        Bond, and (3) Plaintiffs' Cross-Motion for Partial Summary Judgment Against CNMI. Bruce
5        Jorgensen appeared for plaintiffs. Assistant Attorney General Robert Goldberg appeared on 6        behalf of the CNMI.

7
8        Upon consideration of the written and oral argument of counsel, the Court hereby 9        GRANTS IN PART and DENIES IN PART defendant CNMI's motion to dismiss as follows:
10       counts one and two (unlawful imprisonment) are dismissed with prejudice as to the CNMI to the 11       extent they are based on 42 U.S.C. § 1983 and dismissed with leave to amend to the extent they 12       are based on 28 U.S.C. § 1350; count three (unlawful seizure) is dismissed with prejudice; the 13       asylum claims in counts four and five are dismissed and plaintiffs are granted leave to amend
14       consistent with this order; counts six (unconstitutional pro hac vice requirement) and seven 15       (Open Government Act Defiance) are dismissed without prejudice; count eight (conspiracy) is 16       not directed against defendant; the motion is denied as to count nine (concealment); counts ten
17       (emotional distress), eleven (estoppel) and fourteen (Article X, Sec. 9) are dismissed with leave
18       to amend; counts twelve (punitive damages) and thirteen (joint and several liability) are 19       dismissed with prejudice. Plaintiffs' cross-motion for partial summary judgment is DENIED.
20       The CNMI's motion for Supersedeas bond was DENIED pursuant to the Court's September 7, 21       2000 Order Denying Defendant CNMI Motion for Supersedeas Bond.
22
23
24

25
26       <sup>1</sup>This motion was filed and heard before this case was consolidated with Liang v. Goldberg, Civ.
      No. 99-0046.

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26

DEFENDANT CNMI'S MOTION TO DISMISS

The SAC asserts fourteen counts based on the defendants' alleged failure to provide asylum and torture protection procedures in the CNMI and the alleged prolonged and arbitrary detention of plaintiff Ahmed. Defendant CNMI moves to dismiss the SAC with prejudice on five grounds: (1) the CNMI was not served within 120 days; (2) the SAC is deficient; (3) plaintiffs' asylum claims are barred; (4) the CNMI has sovereign immunity; and (5) the Court has discretion to decline supplemental jurisdiction over the local claims.

Plaintiffs contend they were never served with defendant's motion to dismiss but nonetheless oppose the motion by adopting and incorporating by reference their opposition to the CNMI's motion to dismiss/cross-motion for partial summary judgment filed in Liang v. Goldberg on August 3, 2000. Plaintiffs' motion for partial summary judgment against the CNMI is also based on that brief.

In response, defendant argues plaintiffs may not incorporate by reference a pleading from a separate matter and its motion to dismiss should therefore be granted because plaintiffs have not filed or served an opposition.<sup>2</sup>

In ruling on a motion to dismiss, all allegations of material fact are to be construed as true and the court should not dismiss a plaintiff's claim "unless it appears beyond doubt that the plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of his claim which would entitle him to relief." Gilligan v. Jamco Development Corp., 108 F.3d 246, 248 (9th Cir. 1997). "The Supreme Court

---

<sup>2</sup>Because the complaints in the Ahmed action and the Liang action are substantially similar and the arguments respecting dismissal are the same, and further, defendant also makes reference to the Liang matter, the Court will consider plaintiffs' arguments that have been incorporated by reference from the Liang filings.

1 has explained that it may appear on the face of the pleading that a recovery is very remote and
2 unlikely but that is not the test. In reviewing the sufficiency of a complaint, the issue is not
3 whether a plaintiff will ultimately prevail but whether the claimant is entitled to offer evidence to 4 support the claims.” Id. at 249 (internal quotation marks and citations omitted). A Rule 12(b)(6)
5 dismissal is proper where there is either a “lack of a cognizable legal theory” or “the absence of 6 sufficient facts alleged under a cognizable legal theory.” Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dept., 901
7 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir. 1988). Leave to amend may be granted where the court can “conceive of 8 facts that would render plaintiff’s claim viable” or “if it appears at all possible that the plaintiff
9 can correct the defect” and the court can “discern from the record no reason why leave to amend
10 should be denied.” Id. at 701 (internal quotation marks omitted).
11

12 I. SERVICE OF PROCESS

13
14 Defendant argues that service of process was not properly effected within 120 days of the 15 filing of the original complaint and that time for service expired on June 9, 2000. Defendant
16 maintains that the filing and service of the SAC on July 5, 2000, pursuant to the Court’s June 22,
17 2000 Order, did not renew the time period in which to effect service.
18

19 Defendant was served with the First Amended Complaint (“FAC”) on May 24, 2000 and 20 on June 12, 2000 filed a motion to dismiss the complaint and quash service of the summons. On 21 July 10, 2000, prior to the scheduled hearing date, the Court issued an order finding the CNMI’s
22 motion moot because on June 22, 2000, plaintiffs had been granted leave to file an amended
23 complaint pursuant to their motion to amend. (July 10, 2000 Order Finding Def. CNMI Mot. to 24 Dismiss and Mot. to Quash Summons Moot and Directing Pls. to Serve Defs. Pursuant to Fed.
25 R.Civ.P. 4; June 22, 2000 Order Granting Pls.’ Mot. to Amend and Finding Def. United States’
26

1 Mot. to Dismiss Moot). In its July 10, 2000 Order, the Court directed plaintiffs to serve the SAC
2 in accordance with Fed.R.Civ.P. 4. but did not explicitly grant an enlargement of time in which
3 to effect service. Plaintiffs complied with the Court's Orders and served defendant with the SAC
4 on July 5, 2000. At the hearing on September 7, 2000, the Court granted plaintiffs an extension
5 of the period in which to effect service, nunc pro tunc, to the time when the SAC was served.<sup>3</sup>
6 (Sept. 7, 2000 Order Den. Mot. of Def. CNMI for Supersedeas Bond). Accordingly, defendant's
7 motion to dismiss on this ground is moot.
8

9 II. DEFICIENCIES IN THE SECOND AMENDED COMPLAINT

10 Defendant contends the SAC should be dismissed because of the following deficiencies:
11 (1) the SAC is not pled with sufficient specificity to give defendants fair notice of the bases for 12 the claims; (2) the claims for estoppel, punitive damages, and joint and several liability are not
13 legal claims but are requests for relief or juridical concepts; (3) the claim for unconstitutional pro
14 hac vice requirement challenges a CNMI Supreme Court General Order which plaintiffs lack 15 standing to assert and which is a matter that should be raised with the Supreme Court; and (4) the 16 claim based on Article X, Section 9 of the Commonwealth Constitution, permitting taxpayers to 17 bring suit to enjoin spending, is not applicable because the complaint does not allege plaintiffs 18 are taxpayers and the suit does not seek to enjoin the expenditure of public funds.
19
20
21
22

---

23
24 <sup>3</sup>"If service of the summons and complaint is not made upon a defendant within 120 days after 25 the filing of the complaint, the court, upon motion or on its own initiative after notice to the plaintiff, 26 shall dismiss the action without prejudice as to that defendant or direct that service be effected within a specified time . . ." Fed.R.Civ.P. 4(m). Rule 4(m) "authorizes the court to relieve a plaintiff of the consequences of an application of this subdivision even if there is no good cause shown." Id.,
Advisory Committee's note for 1993 amendments.

1           A.       Failure to Plead with Specificity

2           Defendant states the SAC in this case is substantially similar to the FAC filed in Liang v.
3 Goldberg, which was dismissed for failure to plead with sufficient specificity to give defendants
4 fair notice of the bases for the claims. Defendant argues that because plaintiffs have not
5 corrected similar deficiencies in the complaint in this action after two amendments, the SAC
6 should be dismissed with prejudice. Plaintiffs contend that the SAC comports with the “notice”
7 pleading requirement of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.
8

9           Pursuant to defendant United States’ Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss the FAC in Liang
10 v. Goldberg, the Court dismissed that complaint on the ground that it was not pled with sufficient
11 particularity to give defendants adequate notice of the legal bases for the asylum-related claims
12 and consequently, whether plaintiffs had standing to assert those claims. (Liang v. Goldberg, 13 No. 99-46, April 10, 2000 Order Granting Def. United States’ Mot. to Dismiss). Plaintiffs’
14 allegations in the SAC in this action are substantially similar to those asserted in the FAC in 15 Liang and defendant moves to dismiss the SAC with prejudice for failure to plead with 16 specificity. Defendant also moves to dismiss the claims for failure to state a claim upon which 17 relief can be granted.
18
19

20           When a pleading is defective because it is vague and ambiguous such that a party cannot 21 reasonably be required to frame a responsive pleading, the proper remedy is a motion for a more
22 definite statement pursuant to Rule 12(e). See 5A Charles Alan Wright and Arthur R. Miller,
23 Federal Practice and Procedure § 1376 (1990). But “[i]f the movant believes his opponent’s
24 pleading does not state a claim for relief, the proper course is a motion under Rule 12(b)(6) even 25 if the pleading is vague or ambiguous.” Id.
26

1 Because defendant has moved to dismiss the asylum claims for failure to state a claim for 2 relief, even with respect to the vague and generalized legal bases asserted in support of those
3 claims, the Court will treat defendant's motion to dismiss for lack of specificity as a motion
4 pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) and will discuss the complaint's failure to cite specific bases of law
5 regarding asylum in conjunction with defendant's other arguments that the counts do not state a 6 claim for relief.

7
8 B. Estoppel (Count 11)

9 Plaintiffs allege five incidents where an asylum process was allegedly made available to 10 other aliens in the CNMI. Plaintiffs allege by effect of such occurrences, defendants have made 11 promises, inducements and/or public representations to plaintiffs on which they have 12 detrimentally relied. Plaintiffs assert they have suffered "damages including continued lack of 13 due process required for enforcement of lawful human rights within the CNMI," (SAC ¶ 184)
14 and request that defendants be estopped from denying the substance and effect of such promises,
15 inducements and representations. Defendant moves to dismiss the claim because it is not a 16 proper cause of action.

17
18 A claim for estoppel against the government is cognizable in the CNMI. See In re
19 Blankenship, 3 N. Mar. I. 209, 213 (1992) ("Estoppel is [sic] doctrine of law separate unto itself, 20 and estoppel may be asserted if the facts and circumstances of a particular case warrant."); see 21 also Aquino v. Tinian Cockfighting Board, 3 N.M.I. 284, 295 (1991) (plaintiffs may seek the 22 benefit of estoppel, and even if not specifically pleaded, it may nonetheless be available to 23 plaintiffs if established by the evidence). A claim for estoppel requires the presence of four 24 elements: "(1) the party to be estopped must be apprised of the facts; (2) he must intend that his 25
26

1 conduct shall be acted upon, or must so act that the party asserting the estoppel had a right to
2 believe it was so intended; (3) the other party must be ignorant of the true state of facts; and (4)
3 he must rely upon the conduct to his injury.” In re Blankenship, at 214.

4 It may be inferred from the allegations that defendant’s conduct indicated to plaintiffs
5 that asylum procedures are available in the CNMI. The allegations of detrimental reliance,
6 however, are vague because the manner in which plaintiffs relied on defendants’ conduct is not
7 clear. The nature of the damages suffered is also vague. Lastly, it is not clear what plaintiffs
8 wish to estop defendants from doing. Accordingly, plaintiffs’ claim for estoppel fails to state a
9 claim for relief and is dismissed. Because plaintiffs may be able to correct the deficiencies, leave
10 to amend is granted.
11

12
13 C. Punitive Damages (Count 12)

14 Plaintiffs set forth a request for punitive damages as a separate count. However, a 15 request for punitive damages is more appropriately made in the appropriate substantive count
16 and/or the prayer for relief because punitive damages may only be available with respect to 17 certain claims and against certain defendants. Further, plaintiffs have requested punitive 18 damages in their other counts and in their prayer for relief, therefore a separate count is 19 redundant. Accordingly, the count for punitive damages is dismissed with prejudice.
20

21 D. Joint and Several Liability (Count 13)

22 Plaintiffs seek to hold the defendants jointly and severally liable. Joint and several 23 liability is not a cause of action; it is a request for relief that should be made in the substantive 24 counts and/or in the prayer for relief, which plaintiffs have done. Accordingly, the count for 25 joint and several liability is dismissed with prejudice.
26

1                   E.       Unconstitutional Pro Hac Vice Restriction (Count 6)

2           Plaintiff Ahmed contends the Commonwealth Supreme Court's August 23, 1999 General
3   Order 99-900 concerning pro hac vice admissions deprives him of his right to counsel of his
4   choice and requests an order declaring that General Order 99-900 is unconstitutional. Defendant
5   argues that plaintiff lacks standing to assert the claim and that it is a matter that should be raised
6   with the Supreme Court.
7

8           Plaintiff's allegation in ¶ 148 of the SAC that the habeas corpus proceeding in the CNMI
9   Superior Court has "the prospect of being appealed to the CNMI Supreme Court, and/or 10   remanded, and/or re-appealed, [and] raises the likely prospect that the proceeding will extend,
11   over a period exceeding one year . . ." does not show the existence of an actual controversy.
12   Accordingly, the count is dismissed without prejudice. See Oregon State Police Officers Ass'n
13   v. Peterson, 979 F.2d 776, 777 (9th Cir. 1992) (suit was brought against Oregon Supreme Court
14   and its Justices alleging unconstitutional practices in failing to award attorney fees in § 1983
15   cases; court found dismissal appropriate because the Association's allegation that it expected to 16   sue in the future to protect its members constitutional rights was insufficient to state the 17   existence of an actual case or controversy).
18
19

20                   F.       Article X Section 9 Damage/Attorney Fee Award (Count 14)

21           Plaintiffs seek relief under Article X, Section 9 of the Commonwealth Constitution for an 22   award of compensation including attorneys' fees. Article X, Section 9 provides "[a] taxpayer
23   may bring an action against the government or one of its instrumentalities in order to enjoin the 24   expenditure of public funds for other than public purposes or for a breach of fiduciary duty. The 25
26

1 court shall award costs and attorney fees to any person who prevails in such an action in a
2 reasonable amount relative to the public benefit of the suit.”

3 Plaintiffs have failed to state a claim based on Article X. Section 9 because the SAC
4 makes no allegations that the plaintiffs are taxpayers, nor does it seek to enjoin the expenditure
5 of public funds. Further, an award of damages is not available under this Constitutional
6 provision. Accordingly, the CNMI’s motion to dismiss this count is granted. Because plaintiffs 7 may be able to remedy the deficiencies with respect to the claim, plaintiffs are granted leave to 8 amend.
9

10 III. VIABILITY OF ASYLUM CLAIMS

11 Defendant argues that the asylum claims fail to state a claim upon which relief can be 12 granted, and in the interest of litigation economy, refer to the legal arguments made by the 13 United States in their motion to dismiss the FAC filed on April 10, 2000.<sup>4</sup> Plaintiffs did not 14 squarely address these incorporated arguments in their opposition. Defendant also argues it is 15 not a proper party because as a legal matter there is no cause of action against the CNMI
16
17
18 19

---

20 <sup>4</sup>In the United States’ motion to dismiss the FAC, the United States advanced the following 21 arguments concerning the asylum claims which the CNMI now adopts: (1) plaintiffs cannot rely on 22 the 1967 Protocol because the treaty is not self-executing; (2) plaintiffs cannot rely on U.S. domestic 23 law because the INA which governs asylum and withholding of deportation matters in the United
24 States does not apply in the CNMI by its own terms and is not applicable pursuant to the Covenant
25 to Establish a Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands in Political Union with the United 26 States of America (“Covenant”), Act of Mar. 24, 1976, Pub. L. No. 94-241, 90 Stat. 263 (1976), reprinted at 48 U.S.C. § 1681; (3) the CNMI exercises plenary authority over immigration matters pursuant to the Covenant; (4) plaintiffs have not identified the specific principles of customary international law upon which they rely; (5) plaintiffs cannot rely on customary international law because it has been superceded by the Covenant, INA, and CNMI domestic law; and (6) there can be no constitutional violation because there is no international law violation.

1 concerning asylum, and as a practical matter, it cannot provide plaintiffs with relief concerning
2 asylum.<sup>5</sup>

3 A. Claims Based on the 1967 Protocol

4 In their complaint, plaintiffs allege the failure of the CNMI and the United States to 5 provide asylum/refugee procedures and protection from refoulement in the CNMI violates the 6 1967 Protocol Relating to the Status of Refugees ("Protocol").<sup>6</sup> Plaintiffs allege the Protocol is 7 the supreme law of the CNMI and is binding on the CNMI through the Covenant and also 8 through the CNMI's adoption of the Restatements of Law as rules of decision for the courts.
9

10 Defendant argues the Protocol is not self-executing and therefore does not provide 11 plaintiffs with enforceable rights. Defendant also argues the INA which implements the 12 Protocol, is not applicable to the CNMI by its own terms and under the terms of the Covenant.
13 Lastly, defendant argues that even if the Protocol is binding on the CNMI through the Covenant,
14 it does not make the Protocol self-executing or otherwise enforceable in court.
15

16 i) Claims based directly on the Protocol.

17 The 1967 Protocol entered into force in the United States on November 1, 1968 and 18 incorporates articles 2 to 34 of the 1951 Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees ("1951
19 Convention").<sup>7</sup> Plaintiffs rely on Article 33 of the Convention which provides "[n]o Contracting 20

---

21
22 <sup>5</sup>The CNMI does not assert or incorporate any argument with respect to plaintiffs' torture
23 protection claims. Accordingly, whether or not plaintiffs have stated a claim for relief against the 24 CNMI concerning torture protection is not before the Court.

25 <sup>6</sup>Protocol Relating to the Status of Refugees, January 31, 1967, 19 U.S.T. 6223, 606 U.N.T.S.
26 267. (Signed by United States on Nov. 1, 1968).

<sup>7</sup>Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees, July 28, 1951, 189 U.N.T.S. 137.

1 State shall expel or return (“refouler”) a refugee in any manner to the frontiers of territories
2 where his life or freedom would be threatened on account of his race, religion, nationality,
3 membership of a particular social group or political opinion.” Plaintiffs also rely on Article 34
4 of the Convention which provides “[t]he Contracting States shall as far as possible facilitate the 5 assimilation and naturalization of refugees.” The Protocol by its terms is applicable to the CNMI
6 as part of the United States.<sup>8</sup>

7
8 The Protocol, however, is not self-executing. See United States v. Aguilar, 883 F.2d 662, 9 680 (9th Cir. 1989). Its provisions, therefore, are not directly enforceable by a private party in 10 court. See People of Saipan v. United States Dept. of Interior, 502 F.2d 90, 100-101(9th Cir.
11 1974) (Trask, J., concurring). Accordingly, plaintiffs cannot state a claim for relief based on a 12 violation of the Protocol.

13
14 ii) Claims based on the legislation implementing the Protocol.

15 When a treaty is not self-executing, its terms must be implemented through domestic 16 legislation and a private individual may then invoke the domestic law to secure any rights
17 provided. See id. at 101. The legislation implementing the Protocol is the INA. See INS v.
18 Cardoza-Fonseca, 480 U.S. 421, 424, 107 S.Ct. 1207, 1209 (1987) (the 1980 Refugee Act 19 amended the INA to fully implement the United States’ obligations under the Protocol).
20 However, the Covenant which governs the applicability of federal law to the CNMI,<sup>9</sup> renders 21 most INA provisions inapplicable to the CNMI, including the provisions for asylum and 22

23
24 <sup>8</sup>Article I, section 3 of the Protocol provides that the “Protocol shall be applied by the States
25 Parties hereto without any geographical limitation.”

26 <sup>9</sup>See generally United States ex rel. Richards v. De Leon Guerreo, 4 F.3d 749, 756 (9th Cir. 1993)
(applicability of federal law within the CNMI is governed by the Covenant).

1 withholding of deportation (non-refoulement). See Cov. § 503.<sup>10</sup> The purpose of restricting the 2 INA is to allow the CNMI to control its own immigration.<sup>11</sup> This authority includes the granting
3 of political asylum and refugee status within the CNMI because of the close nexus with 4 immigration. See Tran v. CNMI, 780 F.Supp. 709, 713 (D.N.M.I. 1991).

5 Because the Covenant restricts application of the INA, the CNMI is not constrained by 6 the INA and a violation of inapplicable INA provisions would not subject the CNMI to liability.
7 Accordingly, plaintiffs cannot state a claim for asylum against the CNMI based on the INA.
8

9 iii) Claims based on the supremacy of the Protocol over CNMI law.

10 Plaintiffs allege the Protocol is the supreme law of the CNMI under the Covenant and is 11 part of CNMI law through the CNMI's adoption of the Restatements of law. See 7 CMC §
12
13
14
15
16
17

---

18 <sup>10</sup>Section 503 of the Covenant provides “[t]he following laws of the United States, presently
19 inapplicable to the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, will not apply to the Northern Mariana 20 Islands except in the manner and to the extent made applicable to them by the Congress by law after 21 termination of the Trusteeship Agreement: (a) except as otherwise provided in Section 506, the 22 immigration and naturalization laws of the United States.” Pursuant to § 506 of the Covenant, the CNMI is deemed to be part of the United States under the INA only for limited purposes pertaining to citizenship, naturalization and nationality issues.

23 <sup>11</sup>See H.R. Rep. No. 94-364 at 5-19 (1975) (“Subsection 503(a) provides that until Congress acts
24 to make the immigration and naturalization laws applicable, the Northern Marianas will have local 25 control over immigration”); see also Marianas Political Status Comm’n Sec. By Sec. Analysis of the 26 Covenant § 506 (1975), reprinted in Northern Mariana Islands: Hearing before the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, 94th Cong., 356-396 (1975) (“the laws of the Northern Marianas will set the conditions under which people will be able to immigrate to the Northern Marianas”).

1 3401.<sup>12</sup> Defendant contends that even if the Protocol is applicable pursuant to the Covenant, it is
2 still unenforceable in court because it is not self-executing.

3 "International law and international agreements of the United States are law of the United 4 States and supreme over the law of the several states." Restatement (Third) of the Foreign
5 Relations Law of the United States (hereinafter "Restatement") § 111(1). "The Supremacy
6 Clause requires the invalidation of any state legislation that burdens or conflicts in any manner
7 with any federal laws or treaties." De Canas v. Bica, 424 U.S. 351, 357 n.5, 96 S.Ct. 933, 937
8 n.5 (1976). The CNMI's immigration laws, which lack an asylum procedure and provide only
9 discretionary non-refoulement relief,<sup>13</sup> do not wholly comport with the principles of the Protocol
10 as interpreted by the U.S. Supreme Court.<sup>14</sup> See generally Restatement § 111(1) cmt. d
11
12

---

13
14 <sup>12</sup>"In all proceedings, the rules of the common law, as expressed in the restatements of the law
15 approved by the American Law Institute and, to the extent not so expressed as generally understood
16 and applied in the United States, shall be the rules of decision in the courts of the Commonwealth, 17 in the absence of written law or local customary law to the contrary." 7 CMC § 3401.

18 <sup>13</sup>"The Attorney General may decline to designate as destination any country where in his opinion
19 the excluded or deported person would be subject to persecution on account of race, religion or 20 political persuasion." 3 CMC § 4344(d).

21 <sup>14</sup>In Cardoza-Fonseca, 480 U.S. at 441, 107 S.Ct. at 1218, the Supreme Court stated that the 22 Article 34 asylum provisions of the Protocol/Convention are precatory and therefore discretionary.
23 See also INS v. Stevic, 467 U.S. 407, 428 n.22, 104 S.Ct. 2489, 2500 n.22 (1984) ("Article 34
24 merely called on nations to facilitate the admission of refugees to the extent possible; the language
25 of Article 34 was precatory and not self-executing.") (emphasis in the original). In contrast, the 26 Supreme Court stated the Protocol/Convention's provision regarding refoulement is mandatory. See Cardoza-Fonseca at 441, 107 S.Ct. at 1218 ("Article 33.1 provides an entitlement for the subcategory
[of refugees] that 'would be threatened' with persecution upon their return."); see also Stevic, 467
U.S. at 428 n.22, 104 S.Ct. at 2500 n.22 ("Article 33 gave the refugee an entitlement to avoid deportation to a country in which his life or freedom would be threatened . . . . As the Secretary of State correctly explained at the time of consideration of the Protocol: '[F]oremost among the rights which the Protocol would guarantee to refugees is the prohibition (under Article 33 of the Convention) against their expulsion or return to any country in which their life or freedom would be threatened.'") (emphasis in the original).

1 ("Interpretations of international agreements by the United States Supreme Court are binding on
2 the States."'). Under the supremacy clause adopted in the Covenant,<sup>15</sup> however, only applicable
3 international agreements of the United States are considered to be the supreme law of the CNMI,
4 and the Protocol does not appear to fall within that purview.

5 Although the Protocol is applicable to the CNMI by its own terms,<sup>16</sup> the INA which 6 implements the Protocol excludes the CNMI from the definition of "United States," in a 7 geographical sense, and also from the definition of a state.<sup>17</sup> It is not clear if this exclusion was 8 intended to render the Protocol's principles wholly inapplicable as supreme law of the CNMI or 9 whether the intent was only to limit the INA's application in order to permit the CNMI to control
10 its own immigration, but within the bounds of the Protocol. Because there is no indication of 11 legislative intent, effect must be given to the plain and unambiguous language of the statute.
12 That language serves to supercede the Protocol's provision regarding geographical application<sup>18</sup>
13
14

---

15
16 <sup>15</sup>"The relations between the Northern Mariana Islands and the United States will be governed
17 by this Covenant which, together with those provisions of the Constitution, treaties and laws of the 18 United States applicable to the Northern Mariana Islands, will be the supreme law of the Northern 19 Mariana Islands." Cov. § 102. "This provision is analogous to the Supremacy Clause of the 20 Constitution of the United States. However, since the Northern Mariana Islands will not be 21 incorporated into the United States, this section has been limited to the provisions of the 22 Constitution, treaties and laws of the United States applicable to the Northern Mariana Islands." S.
23 Rep. No. 94-433, pp. 65-94 (1975).

24 <sup>16</sup>See supra, n.8.

25 <sup>17</sup>The INA provides "[t]he term 'United States', except as otherwise specifically herein provided,
26 when used in a geographical sense, means the continental United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands of the United States." 8 U.S.C.A. § 1101(a)(38) (1999). "The term 'State' includes the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands of the United States." Id. at § 1101(a)(36).

<sup>18</sup>See generally Aguilar, 883 F.2d at 679 ("Congress is not bound by international law [and] if it chooses to do so, it may legislate contrary to the limits posed by international law.").

1 and thereby renders the Protocol inapplicable as supreme law of the CNMI under Covenant §
2 102. See In Re Li, 71 F.Supp.2d 1052, 1055 (D. Haw. 1999) (in construing these same INA
3 provisions with respect to Midway Island, the court stated “[i]f the language of a statute is clear
4 and unambiguous, the court will apply the plain meaning of the language unless a plain meaning
5 interpretation would lead to an absurd result or a result at odds with the legislature’s intent.”)
6 (citing Kaiser Aluminum & Chem. Corp. v. Bonjorno, 494 U.S. 827, 835, 110 S.Ct. 1570 7 (1990)).
8

9 Because the Protocol’s implementing legislation excludes the CNMI, the Protocol cannot 10 be considered applicable federal law under the Supremacy Clause of the Covenant. Accordingly, 11 plaintiffs cannot state a claim for relief based on the repugnancy of CNMI law to the Protocol.
12

13 B. Claims based on International Law

14 Plaintiffs allege the provisions of the 1967 Protocol and the 1951 Convention are part of 15 customary international law and are binding on the CNMI through the principle of jus cogens.
16 Defendant argues that plaintiffs fail to identify any specific principle of customary international 17 law relating to asylum. Defendant also argues that Congress may act contrary to international 18 law and that any principle of international law relating to asylum has been displaced by effect of 19 the INA, Article V of the Covenant (limiting applicability of the INA in the CNMI) and the 20 CNMI’s local immigration law. Defendant argues that pursuant to the authority delegated by 21 Congress, the CNMI has enacted a comprehensive scheme of immigration laws which preempt
22 international law or override international law to the extent of any conflict.
23
24
25
26

1 Congress may supersede a principle of international law if it chooses to do so.<sup>19</sup>
2 However, the laws of a state or constituent unit such as the CNMI cannot override or preempt
3 international law which is law of the United States and therefore supreme law pursuant to the 4 Covenant. See Hines v. Davidowitz, 312 U.S. 52, 61, 61 S.Ct. 399, 401 (1941) (in discussing the 5 regulation of aliens, the Court stated that even where a state can legislate on this subject, “its 6 power is subordinate to supreme national law”); see also Restatement § 115 cmt. e (“[s]ince any 7 treaty or other international agreement of the United States, and any applicable rule of customary 8 international law, is federal law (§111), it supersedes inconsistent State law or policy whether 9 adopted earlier or later”).

11 When Congress agreed to relinquish authority over immigration to the CNMI, it did so
12 with the understanding that the laws implemented by the CNMI were subject to other applicable
13 federal laws. See S. Rep. No. 94-433, pp. 65-94 (1975) and Administration’s Section by Section
14 Analysis of the Covenant reprinted in To Approve ‘The Covenant to Establish the 15 Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands’ and for other Purposes: Hearings before the 16 Subcommittee on Interior and Insular Affairs of the House Committee on Interior and Insular
17 Affairs, 94th Cong. 385-399 (1975) (“It will be noted that until the introduction of the 18 Immigration and Naturalization Act into the Northern Mariana Islands the latter will have the 19 power to enact its own Immigration and Naturalization laws, subject however, to the requirement
20 of applicable federal law.”). Thus Congress has clearly expressed its intent that the CNMI’s
21 immigration authority is limited by the Supremacy Clause of the Covenant.
22
23
24
25

---

26 <sup>19</sup>See supra, n.18.

1 Although the Court has determined that the Protocol cannot be considered the supreme
2 law of the CNMI, international law principles concerning asylum are not so excluded. The INA
3 and the Covenant show no clear intent by Congress to preclude application of customary
4 international law. Nor is application of customary international law principles to the CNMI
5 incongruous with the plain language of the Covenant or the INA.

6
7 Covenant § 503 renders the asylum and non-refoulement provisions of the INA
8 inapplicable in the CNMI. The expressed purpose of this limitation is to allow the CNMI to 9 control its own immigration<sup>20</sup> and evinces no indication that Congress also intended to supersede
10 or preempt principles of customary international law.<sup>21</sup> Further, as noted above, this grant of 11 local immigration control was made with the express understanding that the laws implemented
12 by the CNMI would comport with the requirements of other federal law.<sup>22</sup>

13
14 As to the INA, the plain language of §§ 1101(a)(36) and (38) renders the Protocol
15 inapplicable to the CNMI and therefore inapplicable as the supreme law of the CNMI under 16

---

17
18 <sup>20</sup>See supra n.11.

19 <sup>21</sup>Nor does the Court find that § 503 of the Covenant was intended to or has the effect of 20 superceding the Protocol. “A treaty will not be deemed to have been abrogated or modified by a 21 later statute unless such purpose on the part of Congress has been clearly expressed.” Trans World Airlines, Inc. v. Franklin Mint Corp., 104 S.Ct. 1776, 1782 (1984). It is the INA and § 102 of the Covenant which combine to effectively preclude application of the Protocol.

22 <sup>22</sup>See generally, Hines, 312 U.S. at 66, 61 S.Ct. at 403-404 (because regulation of aliens is so
23 intertwined with the responsibility of the national government, state laws, though enacted in the 24 exercise of powers not controverted, must yield to the supreme laws of the national government);
25 see also De Canas, 424 U.S. at 357 n.5, 96 S.Ct. at 937 n.5 (where Congress has permitted states 26 to legislate concurrently with federal law, federal law will preempt state provisions “to the extent necessary to protect the achievement of the aims of the federal law”); see also Hines at 68, 61 S.Ct.
at 405 (“whatever power a state may have [to regulate aliens] is subordinate to supreme national law.”).

1 Covenant § 102. In the absence of legislative intent to indicate that customary international law
2 relating to asylum is also inapplicable to the CNMI, the Court will not presume that Congress
3 intended to preempt its application, thereby permitting the CNMI to exercise its immigration
4 authority without regard to international standards. See Murray v. The Schooner Charming
5 Betsy, 6 U.S. (2 Cranch), 64 (1804) (to the extent possible, courts must construe federal law so
6 as to avoid violating principles of public international law); see also Maria v. McElroy, 68
7 F.Supp.2d 206 (E.D.N.Y. 1999) (“Congress can be assumed, in the absence of a statement to the 8 contrary, to be legislating in conformity with international law and to be cognizant of this 9 country’s global leadership position and the need for it to set an example with respect to human 10 rights obligations. Where possible, statutes should be construed with this principle in mind.”).

12 Although plaintiffs have not identified a specific principle of customary international law
13 relating to their asylum claims, plaintiffs appear to allege that the 1967 Protocol reflects existing 14 international law principles. (SAC ¶ 56). Any customary international law principle reflected 15 therein, exists independently of the Protocol, and is not displaced or superseded by the Protocol 16 as law of the United States. See Hines, 312 U.S. at 65, 61 S.Ct. at 403 (noting that a body of 17 customary international law defining the duties owed by all nations to aliens exists apart from 18 treaty obligations); see also Restatement § 102 cmt. i (widely accepted international agreements 19 may be declaratory of customary international law and “[i]f an international agreement is 20 declaratory of, or contributes to, customary law, its termination by the parties does not of itself
21 affect the continuing force of those rules as international law”); see also id. introductory note, pt.
22 I at 18 (“Indeed, codification itself assumed the essential validity of the customary law that is 23 being codified and the authenticity of its substantive content. Even after codification, moreover,
24
25
26

1 custom maintains its authority, particularly as regards states that do not adhere to the codifying
2 treaty.”).

3 Because there is no clear intent by Congress to preempt application of customary
4 international law principles with respect to the CNMI, and neither the Covenant, the Protocol,
5 nor the INA otherwise supercede or preempt international law with respect to the CNMI, the 6 CNMI’s exercise of its immigration authority is subject to limitations imposed by customary 7 international law. See generally Restatement § 115 cmt. a (“[W]hen an act of Congress and an 8 international agreement or a rule of customary law relate to the same subject, the courts . . . will 9 endeavor to construe them so as to give effect to both. The courts do not favor a repudiation of 10 international obligation by implication and require clear indication that Congress, in enacting 11 legislation, intended to supersede the earlier agreement or other international obligation.”).

14 The Court recognizes that customary international law ordinarily will not give rise to a 15 private right of action, however, plaintiffs are asserting claims based on the supremacy of 16 international law and application of customary international law is especially appropriate to 17 plaintiffs circumstances where the Covenant renders the controlling treaty, the Protocol, and the 18 controlling legislative act, the INA, inapplicable. See The Paquete Habana, 175 U.S. 677, 20
19 S.Ct. 291 (1900) (“International law is part of our law, and must be ascertained and administered
20 by the courts of justice of appropriate jurisdiction as often as questions of right depending upon it
21 are duly presented for their determination. For this purpose, where there is no treaty and no
22 controlling executive or legislative act or judicial decision, resort must be had to the customs and 23 usages of civilized nations . . .”).

1 Further, plaintiffs are also asserting their claims pursuant to the Alien Tort Claims Act
2 (“ATCA”)<sup>23</sup> which provides aliens with a cause of action based on a violation of international
3 law. See In re Estate of Marcos, Human Rights Litigation, 25 F.3d 1467, 1475 (1994) (“The
4 [ATCA] creates a cause of action for violation of specific, universal and obligatory international
5 human rights standards which confer fundamental rights upon all people vis-a-vis their own
6 governments.”).

8 For the foregoing reasons, plaintiffs’ allegations that the CNMI has failed to implement 9 meaningful asylum and non-refoulement procedures may state a cognizable claim for relief based 10 on principles of customary international law. However, because plaintiffs have failed to clearly 11 identify a “specific, universal and obligatory” principle of customary international law relating to 12 their asylum claims, plaintiffs have failed to sufficiently state a claim for relief. Accordingly, the 13 asylum claims in counts four and five are dismissed and plaintiffs are granted leave to amend
14 those counts consistent with the Court’s ruling.

16 C. CNMI is Not a Proper Defendant

17 Defendant argues it is not a proper defendant because as a legal matter there is no cause
18 of action against the CNMI concerning asylum and as a practical matter the CNMI cannot 19 provide plaintiffs with relief concerning asylum.

21 Because plaintiffs may be able to assert cognizable asylum-related claims based on 22 principles of international law against the defendant, the CNMI is a proper defendant.

---

24
25 <sup>23</sup>The ATCA provides “[t]he district courts shall have original jurisdiction in any action by an 26 alien for a tort only, committed in violation of the law of nations or a treaty of the United States.”
28 U.S.C.A § 1350 (1993). Although plaintiffs have not specifically cited the ATCA in counts four and five, it is alleged in ¶ 31 of the SAC and incorporated by reference in counts four and five.

IV. CNMI'S SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY

Defendant moves to dismiss the SAC with prejudice because the claims are barred by sovereign immunity and immunity has not been waived. More specifically, defendant argues that counts one, two, three, and ten are barred by the CNMI Government Liability Act.<sup>24</sup> Defendant also argues that to the extent sovereign immunity raises jurisdictional issues, the Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction and/or personal jurisdiction.<sup>25</sup> Defendant points out that the Supreme Court has stressed the importance of state sovereign immunity in three recent decisions.<sup>26</sup> Lastly, defendant argues that to the extent any claim against the CNMI is based on 42 U.S.C. §1983, the claim is barred because the CNMI is not a person for §1983 purposes.

Plaintiffs argue the CNMI is a proper and necessary party because the CNMI failed to abide by CNMI, federal, international, and human rights laws and employed defendant Goldberg who promoted the unlawful conduct.

---

<sup>24</sup>Although defendant moves for dismissal of the entire complaint on the basis of immunity, it only specifically addresses the issue with respect to these four claims. Because defendant bears the burden of establishing its immunity, the court will only address the four claims specifically discussed by defendant. See generally Lazar v. California, 237 F.3d 967, 974 (9th Cir. 2001) ("Under the law of this circuit, an entity invoking Eleventh Amendment immunity bears the burden of asserting and proving those matters necessary to establish its defense.").

<sup>25</sup>In Hill v. Blind Industries and Services of Maryland, the court stated Eleventh Amendment immunity is a "personal privilege" which can be waived and does not implicate a federal court's subject matter jurisdiction. 179 F.3d 754, 760 (9th Cir. 1999) amended by Hill v. Blind Indus. and Serv. of Md., 201 F.3d 1186 (9th Cir. 2000). Accordingly, defendant's argument is without merit.

<sup>26</sup>The CNMI cites Alden v. Maine, 119 S.Ct. 2240 (1999) (Congress can not subject a state to suit in state court without its consent), Florida Prepaid Postsecondary Educ. Expense Bd. v. College Sav. Bank, 119 S.Ct. 2199 (1999) (Commerce Clause and Patent Clause did not provide Congress with authority to abrogate state sovereign immunity, nor did the Fourteenth Amendment provide Congress with such authority respecting patents), and College Sav. Bank v. Florida Prepaid Postsecondary Educ. Expense Bd., 119 S.Ct. 2219 (1999) (Congress could not abrogate state sovereign immunity under Trademark Remedy Clarification Act).

1                   A.      Unlawful Imprisonment Counts (Counts 1, 2 and 3)

2                   Count one for unlawful imprisonment, count two for unlawful policy/practice and count
3 three for unlawful seizure are based on the allegedly arbitrary, indefinite and capricious
4 imprisonment of plaintiff Ahmed. Plaintiff alleges the detention violated his liberty interests,
5 procedural and substantive due process rights, and the U.S. and CNMI constitutional prohibitions
6 against unreasonable seizure. Plaintiff seeks money damages pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 and 7 28 U.S.C. § 1350.
8

9                   Counts one, two and three fail to state a claim for relief against the CNMI to the extent
10 they are based on § 1983 because the CNMI is not a “person” within the meaning of § 1983. See
11 DeNieva v. Reyes, 966 F.2d 480, 483 (9th Cir. 1992). Accordingly, the counts are dismissed with 12 prejudice to the extent they are based on § 1983.
13

14                   Count three also fails because the Court has determined that a plaintiff cannot state a 15 claim for unlawful seizure where the initial arrest and imprisonment appears to be valid and the 16 plaintiff challenges only the subsequent arbitrary and indefinite nature of the detention. (Liang v.
17 Goldberg, No. 99-46, November 20, 2000 Am. Order Granting in Part and Den. in Part Def.
18 Goldberg’s Mot. to Dismiss). Accordingly, count three for unlawful seizure against the CNMI
19 fails to state a claim for relief and is dismissed with prejudice.
20

21                   Counts one and two, to the extent they are based on the ATCA, fail if there is no waiver
22 of sovereign immunity. See Koohi v. United States, 976 F.2d 1328, 1332 n.4 (9th Cir. 1992)
23 (Alien Tort Claims Act does not constitute a waiver of sovereign immunity). Defendant
24 contends the CNMI’s Government Liability Act does not a waive sovereign immunity for these 25 “false imprisonment” claims.
26

1           The Government Liability Act waives the CNMI's immunity for tort damages but does
2 not waive immunity for claims arising out of false imprisonment.<sup>27</sup> The Government Liability
3 Act, however, is only relevant to the CNMI's amenability to suit based on state law and is not
4 relevant when a claim is based on federal law, such as the ATCA. The Ninth Circuit held that 5 pursuant to the Covenant, the CNMI lacks Eleventh Amendment immunity and has "impliedly
6 waived whatever immunity it might otherwise have enjoyed against suits in federal courts arising
7 under federal law." See Fleming v. Department of Public Safety, 837 F.2d 401, 407 (9th Cir.
8 1988), overruled on other grounds by DeNieva v. Reyes, 966 F.2d 480, 483 (9th Cir. 1992); see 9 also Magana v. CNMI, 107 F.3d 1436, 1440 (9th Cir. 1997) (court noted that the CNMI is 10 amenable to suit for money damages where the Eleventh Amendment would preclude such a suit
11 against a state). The Fleming court found confirmation of this waiver of immunity to federal suit 12 in the "Marianas Political Status Commission's authoritative study of the Covenant . . . [which]
13 found that 'the Government of the Northern Mariana Islands will have sovereign immunity, so 14 that it cannot be sued on the basis of its own laws without its consent.'"<sup>28</sup> Fleming, 837 F.2d at 15 407.
16
17
18 19

---

20       <sup>27</sup>"The Commonwealth Government shall be liable in tort for damages arising from the negligent
21 acts of employees of the Commonwealth acting within the scope of their office or employment . . ."
22 7 CMC § 2202. "The government is not liable for . . . [a]ny claim arising out of assault, battery,
23 false imprisonment, false arrest, malicious prosecution, abuse of process, libel, slander,
24 misrepresentation, deceit, or interference with contract rights. . . ." Id. at § 2204(b).

25       <sup>28</sup>The Supreme Court's decision in Alden v. Maine, 119 S.Ct. 2240 (1999), does not compel a 26 different result. In Alden, the Court stated "the sovereign immunity of the States neither derives from nor is limited by the terms of the Eleventh Amendment." Id. at 2246. In Fleming, the Ninth Circuit found that the CNMI could not claim Eleventh Amendment immunity, and that it waived any other immunity to suit in federal court on a federal claim that it may have possessed. See id. 837
F.2d at 407-408.

1 Because the CNMI lacks immunity to suit in federal court based on federal law, plaintiff
2 may maintain a claim against the CNMI based on the ATCA. Nonetheless, plaintiff has failed to 3 state a claim for relief based on the ATCA because he has not sufficiently alleged a violation of 4 international law by defendant. The complaint specifically alleges the Doe defendants violated
5 jus cogens norms and cites to § 702(d) and (e) of the Restatement. (SAC ¶ 22 and n. 4). Section
6 702(e) of the Restatement states “[a] state violates international law if, as a matter of state policy,
7 it practices, encourages, or condones . . . prolonged arbitrary detention.” Plaintiff has not made
8 such a direct charging allegation against the defendant, either in the background allegations or in 9 the counts. In fact, counts one and two contain no reference to international law except to invoke
10 the ATCA.
11

12 Accordingly, counts one and two are inadequate to state a claim for relief against the 13 CNMI based on the ATCA and those counts, to the extent they are based on the ATCA, are 14 dismissed. Because it appears plaintiffs may be able to state a claim for relief, plaintiffs are 15 granted leave to amend.<sup>29</sup>
16
17
18
19 20
21

---

22 <sup>29</sup>See generally Martinez v. City of Los Angeles, 141 F.3d 1373, 1383-1384 (9th Cir. 1998)
23 (recognizing that a claim for false imprisonment grounded on the international norm proscribing
24 prolonged arbitrary detention is cognizable under the ATCA); but see Barrera-Echavarria v. Rison, 25 44 F.3d 1441 (9th Cir. 1995) (holding excludable alien could not state a claim based on international 26 norm prohibiting prolonged arbitrary detention because international law in the area of immigration detention had been displaced by controlling legislative, executive and judicial acts.). As discussed in Section III, supra, the Court finds there is an absence of such controlling legislative, executive and judicial acts with respect to the CNMI.

1                   B.      Conspiracy (Count 8)

2           Plaintiffs' claim for conspiracy does not appear to be directed against defendant CNMI,
3           therefore defendant CNMI need not respond to this count. Further, to the extent the count is 4           based on 42 U.S.C. § 1983, the count fails to state a claim for relief as to the CNMI.

5                   C.      Emotional Distress (Count 10)

6           All plaintiffs allege intentional and negligent infliction of severe emotional distress
7           against all defendants and are seeking damages, including punitive damages. Defendant appears
8           to presume the emotional distress claims are derivative of the unlawful imprisonment claims and 9           argues that they are barred by sovereign immunity.
10          

11           Because plaintiffs have not clearly alleged which acts caused the emotional distress, it
12           cannot be determined if the claims are barred by sovereign immunity. Accordingly, the count is 13           dismissed for failure to state a claim for relief and plaintiffs are granted leave to amend.
14          

15                   VI.     DISCRETION TO DECLINE JURISDICTION OVER LOCAL CLAIMS

16           Defendant argues that as a matter of judicial comity, the Court should decline jurisdiction
17           over the claims for Open Government Act Defiance (count seven), Concealment (count nine),
18           Emotional Distress (count ten), Estoppel (count eleven), and Article X, Section 9 for damages
19           and attorney fees (count fourteen). Plaintiffs argue that they cannot retain superior court counsel
20           or finance piecemeal litigation and that the Court's exercise of jurisdiction over the local claims
21           promotes judicial economy and avoids conflicting rulings.
22          

23           A district court has supplemental jurisdiction over non-federal claims when those claims
24           "are so related to the claims in the action within such original jurisdiction that they form part of 25           the same case or controversy under Article III of the United States Constitution." 28 U.S.C. §
26

1 1367(a). Federal and non-federal claims are part of the same case or controversy if they “derive 2 from a common nucleus of operative facts, and the claims are such that a plaintiff would
3 ordinarily be expected to try them all in one judicial proceeding, and the federal issues are 4 substantial.” Executive Software N. Am., Inc. v. U.S. Dist. Court, 24 F.3d 1545, 1552 (9th Cir.
5 1994) (internal quotation marks omitted) (citing United Mine Workers v. Gibbs, 383 U.S. 715, 6 725 (1966)).
7

8 The exercise of supplemental jurisdiction, however, is discretionary and the court may 9 decline to exercise jurisdiction if one of the bases enumerated in 28 U.S.C. § 1367(c) is present
10 and to decline the exercise of jurisdiction would best accommodate the values of economy,
11 convenience, fairness and comity. See Executive Software, 24 F.3d at 1551 (“It is clear that,
12 once it is determined that the assertion of supplemental jurisdiction is permissible under sections
13 1367(a) and (b), section 1367(c) provides the only valid basis upon which the district court may 14 decline jurisdiction . . .”); see also id., at 1557. The bases in § 1367(c) upon which a court may 15 decline jurisdiction are: (1) the claim raises a novel or complex issue of State law; (2) the claim
16 substantially predominates over the claim or claims over which the court has original 17 jurisdiction; (3) the district court has dismissed all claims over which it has original jurisdiction;
18 or (4) in exceptional circumstances, there are other compelling reasons for declining jurisdiction.
19
20

21 Plaintiffs’ local law claims arise from a common nucleus of operative facts with 22 plaintiffs’ federal claims – the alleged unlawful imprisonment of Ahmed and plaintiffs’ attempt
23 to seek asylum within the CNMI. Plaintiffs’ local law claims do not substantially predominate
24 over the federal claims or raise novel or complex issues of local law. The Court has not 25 dismissed all the federal claims and defendant has not proffered any compelling reasons or set
26

1 forth any exceptional circumstances to warrant declining jurisdiction. Because none of the 2 circumstances set forth in § 1367(c) are present, the Court will exercise supplemental jurisdiction
3 over counts nine, ten, eleven and fourteen. Accordingly, defendant's motion for the Court to 4 decline supplemental jurisdiction is denied as to counts nine, ten, eleven and fourteen.

5 The Court finds that it lacks jurisdiction over plaintiffs' claim for Open Government Act
6 Defiance (count seven), because the remedy for this claim is vested solely with the 7 Commonwealth Superior Court. See 1 CMC § 9917(b) ("Recourse may be had to the 8 Commonwealth Superior Court by any person unlawfully denied access to public records. Cost
9 of suit and reasonable attorney fees shall be awarded to the prevailing party in such a suit."); see
10 also Cov. § 402(b) ("The District Court will have original jurisdiction in all causes in the 11 Northern Mariana Islands not described in Subsection (a) jurisdiction over which is not vested by 12 the Constitution or laws of the Northern Mariana Islands in a court or courts of the Northern 13 Mariana Islands."). Accordingly, count seven is dismissed without prejudice.

14
15
16 PLAINTIFFS' CROSS-MOTION FOR PARTIAL
17 SUMMARY JUDGMENT AGAINST CNMI

18 Plaintiffs appear to seek summary judgment on their unlawful imprisonment claims
19 (counts one and two) and on that portion of count five concerning the lack of asylum procedures
20 in the CNMI. However, the nature of the relief they are requesting in their summary judgment
21 motion is unclear.

22 Because the asylum claims have been dismissed with leave to amend, plaintiffs' cross-
23 motion for summary judgment regarding asylum is moot. Plaintiffs' unlawful imprisonment 24 counts have also been dismissed with leave to amend, thus the cross-motion is also moot with 25
26

1 respect to those counts. Moreover, summary judgment on the unlawful imprisonment claims
2 prior to any discovery is premature.

3 Accordingly, and for the foregoing reasons, plaintiffs' motion for partial summary
4 judgment is denied as moot.

5
6 CONCLUSION

7 For the foregoing reasons, defendant's motion to dismiss is granted in part and denied in 8 part as follows: counts one and two are dismissed with prejudice to the extent they are based on 9 42 U.S.C. § 1983, and are dismissed with leave to amend to the extent they are based on 28
10 U.S.C. § 1350; count three is dismissed with prejudice; the asylum claims in counts four and five 11 are dismissed and plaintiffs are granted leave to amend consistent with this Order; counts six and 12 seven are dismissed without prejudice; count eight is not directed against defendant; defendant's
13 motion is denied as to count nine; counts ten, eleven and fourteen are dismissed with leave to 14 amend; and counts twelve and thirteen are dismissed with prejudice. Plaintiffs' cross-motion for 15 partial summary judgment is denied.
16

17
18 Plaintiffs shall have 20 days from the date of this order to amend their complaint in 19 conformance with this order.

20 IT IS SO ORDERED.

21 Dated this 11TH day of May, 2001.

22
23

24 Alex R. Munson
25 Judge
26